

Student Communication – December 1, 2020

Dear Student,

As a college student, sometimes your resources may be tight until you reach your goal and can launch a new career, land an internship that begins to open doors, or earn that promotion at your current job. LCCC recognizes you may need a little help to get started with your new chapter.

That is why we are excited to announce the opening of a new program through the Advocacy and Resource Center (ARC): the Commodore Career Closet.

With the help of our team in the ARC and Career Services, we are pleased to offer (and collect!) the gently used professional clothing you may need to prepare for an interview, internship, professional opportunity, or first day on the job. Enrolled LCCC students are welcome to make an appointment to “shop” the Closet, and may receive two complimentary outfits per semester.

When you utilize the Closet, the ARC will also connect you directly to Career Services to take advantage of their career preparation services, such as resume editing and preparation, practice interviews, how to make a great first impression, and other job search tips. We hope this additional program and the generous donations of our caring faculty, staff, students and community members builds the confidence you need entering the job or internship search process.

We believe every student’s dream matters...and the Commodore Career Closet is one more resource we are excited to share with you as you work towards yours.

Sincerely,

Marisa Vernon White, Vice President for Enrollment Management and Student Services
...AND the entire ARC team, Career Services, and the LCCC community
